

ABOUT US

Since 2016, Carboy Winery has been pioneering a new frontier in American winemaking, proving that Colorado can produce world-class wines. Through ambitious winemaking and bold innovation, we have helped elevate the state's industry, crafting expressive, high-elevation wines that embrace adventure and reflect the character of place. From Colorado's Grand Valley to select vineyard partnerships beyond our borders, we work to reveal what makes each site distinct.

Whether through experimental blends, Charmat méthode sparkling wines, or refined still wines, every bottle reflects our commitment to craft and our belief that Colorado belongs on the global wine stage.

But this is not just about what is in the bottle. It is about building something bigger. Carboy is powered by people, a growing community of makers, growers, adventurers, and collaborators united by a love of place and connection. Across multiple destination experiences and through a passionate club of explorers, we are weaving wine into the lifestyle of the West, bringing people together and creating real belonging along the way. We partner across industries, support local agriculture, and continue redefining what it means to make and enjoy wine in Colorado.

When you visit Carboy, you are stepping into something real. Catch the sunset over the Front Range with a glass in hand at our flagship winery in Littleton. Enjoy a wine flight alongside your furry friend in Denver. Kick off your boots and sip bubbles after a hike or ski day in Breckenridge. Watch a concert from the rooftop patio overlooking the vineyard in Palisade. Each of our locations offers a distinct expression of the same DNA: exceptional wine, remarkable hospitality, and an energy that is unmistakably Colorado. Wherever you are headed next, uncork adventure with us.

TYZOK WHARTON

DIRECTOR OF WINEMAKING

After serving in the U.S. Army, Tyzok Wharton was living in New York City when he first developed a deep appreciation for craft beverages and the culinary experiences that surround them. In 2005, drawn to San Francisco's vibrant food and wine culture, he moved west and discovered both a talent for winemaking and a passion for fine cuisine. He refined his craft crushing and cellaring at urban wineries throughout the Bay Area before broadening his global perspective in Argentina's renowned Mendoza region. In 2010, he returned to San Francisco to help launch Bluxome Street Winery.

In 2016, Tyzok became the founding winemaker of Carboy Winery, building the program from the ground up. As the winery expanded into Colorado's largest wine operation, his role evolved into Director of Winemaking, where he now leads a talented and growing production team. A recognized leader in modern American winemaking, and especially in sparkling wine production, Tyzok combines creative innovation with disciplined precision and an unwavering commitment to quality.

His wines are expressive, balanced, and food driven, reflecting both classical refinement and bold experimentation. Through his leadership, Carboy has helped elevate Colorado's reputation and redefine what high elevation winemaking can achieve.

KEVIN WEBBER

CEO & CO-FOUNDER

Kevin Webber is a Colorado native, wine industry trailblazer, and seasoned hospitality veteran with a 30-year career defined by building meaningful brands that connect people to place. In 2015, Kevin co-founded Carboy Winery alongside Craig Jones and Tyzok Wharton with a mission to elevate Colorado wine to world-class status—and today, Carboy stands as the largest wine operation in the state.

With a background that spans the outdoor recreation and natural foods industries, Kevin's passion for wine took root through decades in hospitality, ultimately becoming a certified sommelier in 2011. As CEO, he brings a visionary blend of business strategy, storytelling, and cultural leadership to a brand that's redefining how—and where—American wine is experienced.

Kevin serves as Legislative Chair for the Colorado Association for Viticulture & Enology (CAVE), where he leads critical policy initiatives shaping the future of Colorado wine. He is also the Marketing Chair for the Colorado Wine Industry Development Board (CWIDB), playing a central role in what many are calling the Colorado wine renaissance. Additionally, he serves on the board of the Continental Divide Trail Coalition, reflecting his deep commitment to conservation, community, and the adventurous spirit that defines the region.

A lifelong outdoorsman and passionate advocate for Colorado's land and wine, Kevin believes wine is at its best when it's part of the journey—not just the destination.

